“Minčių sodas” WWW.MS.LT
helps independent thinkers.

They work for free on their projects in the “Public Domain except as noted”.

We give them free services.

We organize global teams for paid work, too.

We have workers in:

Lithuania, Serbia, Finland

Kenya, Uganda, Tanzania, Cameroon, Nigeria

USA, Israeli-occupied Palestine, India

We may have the largest copyright-free online community.
1000 authors in 10 years wrote:

25,000 letters in 20 working groups

4,000 wiki pages

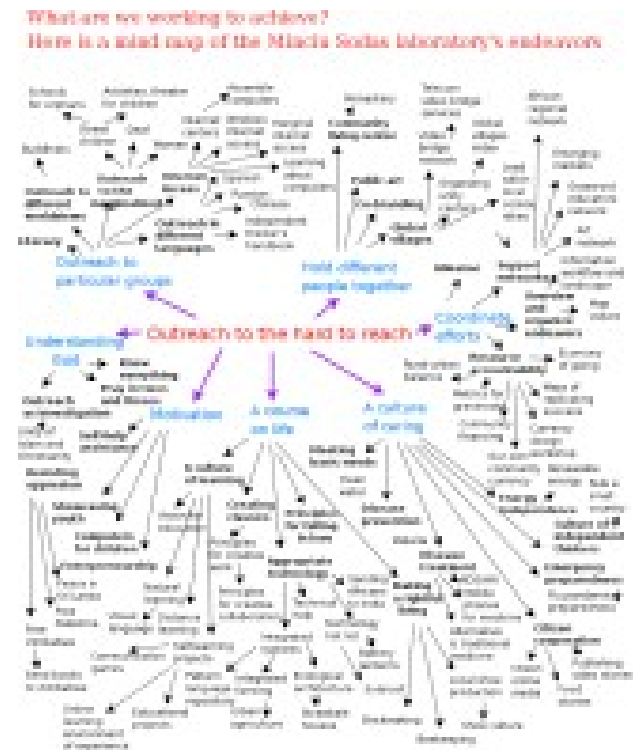

500 food stories

200 chatlines per day

ETHICAL USE OF THE PUBLIC DOMAIN

We organize around those who share their deepest value in life questions they don't know the answer to, but wish to answer
 what they wish to achieve

Assembling Computers	Ken Ovine	Ricardo , Fred Kaywa , Fred Obaia , Robert Lubilo , Andrius Kulkarnis , Sasha Mkallo	Assembling computers in Africa in an optimal way so that our participants might all have them, learn relevant skills and earn income.
Babington Burner	March Jakubowski		Design a Babington Burner, a burner of waste oil that works by having the fuel flow over a small air hole.
Battery Lantern	Surya Rao Maturu		Develop and promote a battery lantern for the poor.
Beekeeping	Sasha Mkallo	Fred Kaywa	Organic beekeeping as a rightful way of making a living.
Bicycles	Kanaan Ajemai		Bicycling for peace and community.
Bios	Leonard Onifade		Write a book which features youth leaders around the world.
Bottom-Up Economy	Henry Mjings	Samuel Kengere	Implement a bottom-up economy in Africa (beginning with Kenya) so that we are economically independent.

Each leader leads a Yahoo group devoted to their deepest value.
We use RSS to track all groups.

Our venues are marked “Public Domain except as noted”

People are only included if they share freely.

People are informed when they join a discussion, enter a chat or visit a wiki.

People are reminded at the footer of every letter and the side of every wiki page.

People are educated on the need to share without restriction.

We are constantly giving and so we grow close.

In the Kenyan turmoil of 2008:

We shared news during the media blackout.

We converted $4,000 into airtime to share and exchange for food, medicine, transport.

We embraced enemies with a Pyramid of Peace, an online phone directory.

We send cell phone airtime to Kenyans who let us publish their phone numbers.

They reach out to Kenyans in other tribes.

People call them from around the world.

Jackton Arija shares freely:

Jan 3, 2008: we don't have food ... putting some remaining sugar on hot water for the kids

Jan 6, 2008: I managed to sell airtime and use to buy food

Jan 12, 2008: Jackton is giving out food to another tribe than his.

Collins builds Pyramid of Peace:

just arrived from Kuresoi the battle field...

booked a meeting that could bring peace to the area

leader refused to give his correct phone numbers unless we promise not to involve the police

after meeting... will communicate directly with... “warlord”

We move news from a Yahoo group to a ProWiki page for that town. Metadata yields a report.

 The simplest way to help right now is to make phone calls to Kenyans and send SMS messages. We are making a list and encouraging calls (note that Kenyan time is GMT+3 and the country code is +254. Check the price per minute - I recommend using Skype <http://www.skype.com>).

We coordinate our team with local meetings, video bridges and our online chat room. Our chat archive is in the Public Domain. So is practically all of our work!

An active participant with marginal Internet access:

may walk 5 km to an Internet cafe and pay €1 per hour gets paid work, contacts, computers, video cameras, air travel grows as if attending college is a €10,000 asset for our network

“Includer” will work offline:

Read & write emails on USB Flash Drives.

Use 2 watts, solar rechargeable batteries.

Upload/download work at Internet cafe.
